

Estate opens with a bang

The newest offering in home sites was officially opened on Saturday by Murray Shire mayor Graeme Shiells.

A big crowd enjoyed Villawood's hospitality with a sausage sizzle, jumping castle and football competitions for the children.

District and project builders were present, showing off their latest offerings in home design, while 32 lots were officially opened for sale.

Eight lots were pre-sold and another two lots sold on the day.

Charles L King and Co First National managing director Gary Wood said the estate was beautifully presented, with Villawood going to a lot of trouble to ensure there was more than enough open space, a large park and a barbecue area.

Mr Wood said the open space factor had been a boon for people with children.
